The issues in 2021: Banipal 70 (pub. April), 71 (pub. July) and 72 (pub. November).

"Banipal gives me an insight into what is going on in literature across the Arabic-writing world, bringing me notice of new writers, new genres, and new possibilities. My collection of past issues is my Bibliotheca Alexandrina."

Humphrey Davies, translator of Arabic fiction, historical and classical texts

Banipal presents the literature of today's Arab authors and poets in English translation. Each issue (three per year) has a major theme and introduces both established and emerging Arab authors and poets through their particular genres of literature. The issues include interviews, profiles, a regular Literary Influences feature, book reviews and a Guest Literature section featuring prominent non-Arab authors. Each issue is fully illustrated. Indexed by MLA (USA) and Islamic Bibliographic Unit, SOAS (UK), 2021 is Banipal's 24th year of continuous publication.

DIGITAL: ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTION

The Digital Banipal Institutional Subscription is for University, College and Public Libraries who need to have multiple access for their readers. Digital Banipal is the same as the print edition with the addition of illustrations and advertisements in full colour, and has the same ISSN number. At present the print and digital editions are separate subscriptions.

The full digital archive of back issues from No 1 (February 1998) was launched on 30 January 2017. The annual digital subscription includes access to the full digital archive.

Our Digital partner Exact Editions manages all these subscriptions, and sets up IP access for librarians.

- Rates for 2021 are remaining the same as 2020, with access to the full archive, start at USD460.00, and are based on FTE
- Digital subscriptions include remote access
- All authentication is via IP range
- Administrators are given an account where they can amend IP ranges and view statistics
- Access includes a full searchable archive of back issues from Banipal No 1 (February 1998)
- Access can be via app on iPad or iPhone within a library
- Each page is an individual URL which makes referencing easy and accurate
- Shibboleth authentication available

Librarians, or their subscription agent, should contact Exact Editions directly for a quotation and subscription rate to fit their FTE requirement, by email on: institutions@exacteditions.com.

PAYMENT

Payment of a digital subscription is made to Exact Editions. Email: institutions@exacteditions.com
